ABSTRACT

One pot synthesis of two benzo[d][1,3]dioxol-5-yl(oxiran-2-yl) methanone derivatives involve two stages. In the first stage, one chalcone synthesis followed by epoxide synthesis. The synthesized product were characterized by ¹H NMR, ¹³C NMR and HRMS spectroscopic technique. The density functional theory calculations were performed using B3LYP/6-31+G (d, p) basis set for the optimization of molecular geometries. In addition to this The optimized molecular geometry, quantum and structural entities such as bond length, total energy, electron density distribution in highest occupied molecular orbital (HOMO) and lowest unoccupied molecular orbital (LUMO), charge distribution, electronegativity, absolute hardness, softness, electrophilicity, chemical potential, charge transfer in molecules have been computed. All the calculations have been computed in the gas phase.

INTRODUCTION

Chalcone possess a broad spectrum of biological activity, due to the presence of the alpha,beta unsaturated system. Chalcones are act as precursor for synthesis of different intermediates like pyrazoline, isoxazole, pyrimidine, benzodiazepines [1-2] etc. The development of heterocyclic compounds with epoxide groups has piqued researchers' interest. Epoxide, sometimes known as epoxy, is just a three-membered cyclic ether. Two carbon atoms, one oxygen atom. Epoxide is extensively used as a precursor in the production of a variety of chemicals. The Wittig-Schöffer reaction, which uses hydrogen peroxide under alkaline circumstances to oxidize alkenes. The Wittig-Schöffer reaction, which uses hydrogen peroxide under alkaline circumstances to oxidize alkenes. Epoxide chalcone is an epoxychalcone, is a good example of green chemistry [3-4]. Epoxychalcone is an intermediate in the synthesis of a wide range of chiral chemicals and natural products [5-7] and has outstanding biological and pharmacological activity ingredients [8-10]. In addition, life-threatening infections caused by pathogenic bacteria and fungi, which are becoming more common, as well as ubiquitous epidemics around the world, have motivated many research groups from all over the world working on novel antibacterial and antifungal agents in order to avoid the rise of various infectious diseases and the rise of multi drug resistance microbial organisms [11-14].

In defining the structural and electrical properties of atoms and molecules, Density Functional Theory has become increasingly popular. The major goal of this research is to synthesize the title molecule and investigate its molecular structure, vibrational spectra, and electronic properties using experimental and computational methods. We present the one pot synthesis of benzo[d][1,3]dioxol-5-yl(3-(4-isopropylphenyl)oxiran-2-yl)methanone and benzo[d][1,3]dioxol-5-yl(3-(4-chlorophenyl)oxiran-2-yl)methanone, which involves two stages, first one chalcone synthesis followed by epoxide and an analysis of their molecular structure, as well as DFT investigation at the B3LYP/6-31+G(d,p) level. In addition to FMOs, a 6-31+G(10, p) basis set was used to investigate ionization potential, electronegativity, global electrophilicity index, and chemical potential.

ABSTRACT

A Schiff base of 2[(E)-(4-methylphenyl)iminomethyl]phenol, 2[(E)-2(methylphenyl)imino]methoxyphenol were prepared from Para toluidine and Orth toluidine with salicylaldehyde. Metal complexes of the Schiff base were prepared from salts of Cu (II) and Ni (II) in ethanol. Spectroscopic analysis confirmed the chemical structures of the Schiff base ligand and its metal complexes. X-ray diffraction (XRD) analysis confirmed the average particle size of the copper (II) complexes. All of the compounds were evaluated for their antimicrobial against one gram-positive bacteria, two gram-negative bacteria. The Schiff base complex of the Cu (II) showed good biological activity against all tested bacteria.

KEYWORDS: Schiff base, Metal complexes, Antimicrobial activity, Particle size

INTRODUCTION

Schiff bases are well known for their biological applications as antibacterial, antifungal, anticancer, antiviral agents and as herbicides, furthermore; they have industrial applications (1), anti-tubercular (2), chelating abilities as chelating ligand in coordination chemistry (3) and widely applied in pharmaceutical compounds (4). The chemistry of Schiff base compounds has been studied extensively. They have various applications as coordinating ligands, as catalysts, in electrochemistry and medicinal values (5). Schiff bases possess antimicrobial and anti-inflammatory activity (5). It has been discovered that the biological activity of some Schiff base ligands became enhanced upon chelation with metal ions (6). Schiff bases are useful ligands because of their synthetic accessibility, diversity and structural varieties (7). The Schiff base ligands and their metal complexes find paramount applications in the field of biological studies (8), clinical (9), dyes, industry (10), and food industry (11).

EXPERIMENTAL

All the chemicals and solvents used were of analytical reagent grade. The Schiff base was prepared as in Scheme 1) by the usual condensation reaction (12), in which salicylaldehyde (SA) (0.08 mole) was drop wise added to the amine (p-Toluidine)(PT) (0.08 mole) in ethanol with continuous stirring. After complete addition the reaction mixture was heated under reflux for about four hours. After reflux, it was cooled and yellow solid precipitate was obtained by filtration. Dry it well and recrystallized from ether and dried at room temperature. Finally yellow solid of 2[(E)-(4-methylphenyl)iminomethyl]phenol Schiff base ligand is obtained. Crystal collected in a good yield 80% (M.P. 100s°C).

ABSTRACT

India, which has the second-largest population in the world is suffering severely from COVID-19 disease. By May (2020) India investigated ~1 lakh (0.1 million) infected cases from COVID-19, and as of 11th July the cases reached 8 lakhs. Social distancing and lockdown rules were employed in India, which however, led to an additional impact on the economy, human living, and environment. Where a negative impact was observed on the economy and human life, the environment got a positive one. How India dealt and can potentially deal with these three factors during and post COVID-19 situation has been discussed here.

KEY WORDS: India, COVID-19, Economy, Environment, Human life, Lock down, Social distance

INTRODUCTION

COVID-19 is the disease caused by a new coronavirus called SARS-cov-2. WHO first learned of this new virus on 31 December 2019, following a report of a cluster of cases of 'Viral Pneumonia' in Wuhan, People's Republic of China. Coronaviruses (cov) are a large family of viruses that cause illness ranging from the common cold to more severe diseases such as Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS-cov) and Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS-cov). A Novel Coronavirus (ncov) is a new strain that has not been previously identified in humans. Coronaviruses are zoonotic, meaning they are transmitted between animals and people. Detailed investigations found that SARS-cov was transmitted from civet cats to humans and MERS-cov from domestic camels to humans. Several known coronaviruses are circulating in animals that have not yet infected humans. Common signs of infection include respiratory symptoms, fever and cough, shortness of breath and breathing difficulties. In more severe cases, infection can cause pneumonia, severe acute respiratory syndrome, kidney failure and even death.

Standard recommendations to prevent infection spread include regular hand washing, covering mouth and nose when coughing and sneezing, thoroughly cooking meat and eggs. Avoid close contact with anyone showing symptoms of respiratory illness such as coughing and sneezing. As the journal Nature reported in 1968, "these viruses are members of a previously unrecognized group which [the virologists] suggest should be called the coronaviruses, to recall the characteristic appearance by which these viruses are identified in the electron microscope."

The word "corona" has many different meanings. But it was the sun that the virologists had in mind when they chose the name coronaviruses. As they wrote, they compared "the characteristic 'fringe' of projections 'on the outside of the virus with the solar corona Structure: Coronaviruses are a group of related RNA viruses that cause diseases in mammals and birds. In humans and birds, they cause respiratory tract infections that can range from mild to lethal. Mild illnesses in humans include some cases of the common cold (which is also caused by other viruses, predominantly rhinoviruses), while more lethal varieties can cause SARS, MERS, and COVID-19. In cows and pigs, they cause diarrhea, while in mice they cause hepatitis and encephalomyelitis. Coronaviruses are large, roughly spherical particles with unique surface projections. Their size is highly variable with average diameters of 80 to 120 nm. Extreme sizes are known from 50 to 200 nm in diameter. The total molecular mass is on average 40,000 kDa. They are enclosed in an envelope embedded with a number of protein molecules. The lipid bilayer, glycoprotein membrane proteins, and nucleocapsid protect the virus when it is outside the host cell.

Abstract:

In this paper, we have developed a new method through statistical third quartile process to find out the initial basic feasible solution of the given transportation problem and compare it with Least Cost Method / minimum cell cost method as well as North - West Corner method and shown that the statistical third quartile method is best as compare to least cost and North - West Corner method.

Keywords: Transportation Problem, Congruence, North - West Corner method

1. Introduction:

Though one can think of transportation problem which were generally arises during the second world war but it has its own roots from the evolution of right from the 400 B. C. / from 3500 B. C. when wheel was invented in the middle east of Asia.

The standard transportation problems [4] mainly North - West Corner Method (NWCM), Least Cost Method (LCM) and Vogel's Approximation Method having important application in the area of physical distribution i.e. transportation of goods and services from several supply centers to several demand centers.

It is interesting to modify the given transportation problem as number theoretic approach using the congruence relation. We know that, the congruence relation $a \equiv b \pmod{m}$ is an equivalence relation [3] which tells us that $m \mid (b - a) \leftrightarrow a \equiv b \pmod{m}$.

The paper mainly consists of three parts. In first part algorithm for proposed method were given. In the second part, new APB's methods along with numerical example were explained. In the third part, we have compared the result with North - West Corner method along with conclusion.

An Algebraic Solution towards Multi Variable Transportation Problem

¹S. D. Manjarekar

Abstract: In this paper, we have consider the cost of transportation not as of one variable but as multivariable which includes goods loading charges, vehicle operator charges, on road transportation cost including toll and taxes, maintenance cost of vehicle and goods unloading charges. Then we have solved this multivariable transportation problem using algebraic approach and compare the result with North – West Corner method.

Keywords: Transportation Problem, Field, Prime Number

AMS Subject Classification (2010): 90B06, 05C25, 11A41

1. Introduction:

Though one can think of transportation problem which were generally arises during the second world war but it has its own roots from the evolution of right from the 400 B. C. or from 3500 B. C. when wheel was invented in the middle east of Asia [5].

There are different methods to find out the transportation cost of the given problem [5] which were dependent of one variable only. However, this cost is nothing but the combination of various dependent variable mainly one can think of, loading and unloading charges, vehicle operator charges, maintenance of cost of vehicle. Even the actual transportation cost includes the tolls and taxes on the road.

This means the transportation cost must be multi – valued and not a single valued. Because sometimes even if short route may cause the increase in maintenance cost of vehicle due to bad weather or road. Hence, we have to consider the problem of transportation not only of single variable / single valued but also multi variable / multi valued.

The paper mainly consist of four parts. The second part consist of basic definitions which were required for the calculations were given. In third part algorithm of proposed method multi variable transportation problem were given. In the fourth part, algebraic solution of given transportation problem were explained and compared the result with North – West Corner method along with conclusion.
